

Hope Basket Co. Plant Closes Out After 51 Years

Hope Basket Company which has been operating in Hope continuously for 51 years, closed down Saturday, March 17, and there is very little prospect of its reopening.

Saturday some 100 employees of the plant were told of the shutdown by Walter Verhalen Jr. He gave no encouragement for reopening. Today he issued the following statement:

"It looks like we are going to be forced to liquidate the Basket Factory. We'll know better within a few weeks."

The Hope plant was organized 51 years ago by Charles Aber. The Verhalen's bought it in 1924 and have operated it continuously.

Peak employment at the plant at one time was about 350. However, during the past few years employment ran around 100 with more during the fruit season. There was no official figure available but the annual payroll ran into thousands of dollars.

Officials of the plant didn't say but the basket business has been declining for several years due to competition from paperboard containers. The Hope plant has always been a constant factor in the economy of this section. It is believed that loss of this year's fruit crop in this area might have been a contributing factor to the plant's closing.

The definite fate of the plant will be known in about three weeks.

Plane With 107 Aboard Still Missing

MANILA (AP)—A report of a mysterious flash of light in the sky increased suspicion today that the American chartered military transport plane which vanished five nights ago blew up and was possibly sabotaged.

U.S. officials said a "bright light strong enough to light" a ship's decks was sighted by a Liberian tanker in the western Pacific along the scheduled route of the missing Flying Tiger Super Constellation bound for South Vietnam with 107 persons aboard.

A spokesman at rescue headquarters in Guam said, "With the search in its fourth day, more credence is given to the possibility that the tanker may have seen the missing aircraft explode in flight."

An official of the Flying Tigers line, which operated the plane, said if investigation reveals the plane blew up, it would strengthen previous suspicions of sabotage.

Frank B. Lynoff, executive vice president in charge of operations, said experts consider it impossible for a violent explosion to occur about its Super Constellation under normal conditions.

The tanker T. L. Linzen said it sighted the bright light in the sky early Friday morning—about 90 minutes after the plane made its last report.

The Super Constellation was last heard from about 10:30 p.m. Thursday, 270 miles west of Guam, and gave no hint of anything amiss.

Vote Machine Issue Will Be on the Ballot

By BILL SIMMONS

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas will have a "Permissive Voting Machine Amendment" on the November general election ballot if tireless labor and feminine wiles can swing it.

The League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women have been pushing for the amendment. Last year they missed, but they're hoping not to miss again.

The League's Mrs. Joan Kurriss said the rift progress report is still several weeks away, but she's willing to estimate the campaign situation.

She said the co-sponsors of the amendment intend to petition every town in Arkansas, regardless of size. Already, 10,000 petitions have been distributed with 5,000 more on order. Backers are not aiming for the minimum requirement of 43,000 signatures, their sights are on the 100,000 mark.

If the women seem unduly ambitious, a backward look might explain it.

Last year the time arrived to pick the three proposed constitutional amendments allowed the legislature. Four discernible pressure groups pushed four separate measures. One, by law, had to be eliminated.

The amendments included the Arkansas Municipal League's "home rule", Gov. Orval E. Faubus' amendment to guarantee a free public education to students who refuse to attend integrated schools, a pay raise for county and state officers, and the voting machine amendment.

The weakest group backed the voting machines.

This amendment gave Arkansas legislators opportunity to go on record for reform without taking any real steps toward reform. And this they did. The House passed it handily and the Senate approved unanimously.

The General Assembly has a custom that the first three amendments adopted are the three that will go on the ballot at the general election of the next even year.

The voting machine amendment was fourth in line, and the legislators adopted it for "show" purposes.

The amendment, proposed by Pulaski County Representative Jim Brandon, never had a chance to get on the ballot.

This was, at the time, a disheartening setback for the women. In the long run, it may prove the nemesis of the legislators.

The A.A.U.W., guided by Mrs. John Reid in the campaign, submitted a survey last year showing officials in states using voting machines strongly endorsed them. The Arkansas Supreme Court unanimously upheld a 1949 law which authorized the use of voting machines if they provide a voter record, which voting machines do not.

The two companies manufacturing practically all voting machines in use — Shoup Voting Machine Corp. of Ridley Park, Pa. and the Automatic Voting Machine Corp. of Jamestown, N.Y.—have flatly rejected the possibility of altering their machines in order to record how each person votes.

The women contend that the secret ballot must be assured, while politicians' claim that the

Mrs. Jennie City, 82, of Ozan, Dies Late Saturday

Mrs. Jennie Green City, aged 82, wife of the late F. P. City, Ozan merchant and planter, died Saturday in a local rest home. She was a lifelong resident of Ozan, one of identical twin daughters and a member of a pioneer Homestead family. Until her death, she and her twin sister, Mrs. Josie Smith were one of the few octogenarian twins in Arkansas. All their lives they have lived near each other and dressed identically. She was an active member of Ozan Methodist Church from the early years of her life.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Harvey Holt of Hope and Mrs. W. M. Sparks of Little Rock and two sons, G. S. Smith of Ozan and Mrs. Bob Carvigan of Texarkana; two brothers, J. K. Green of Ozan and O. R. Green of Hope and a niece, Mrs. Charles O. Thomas of Hope.

Services were to be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday at Ozan Methodist Church by the Rev. W. C. Lewis. Burial by Herndon-Cornelius Funeral Service will be in St. Paul Cemetery at Ozan.

SEC Asking Data on Stock Deals

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission is asking about 50 corporations to detail all recent public relations dealings with financial writers, securities analysts and brokers.

The aim is to find out more about the impact of promotional campaigns on stock prices. Also, the agency wants to know if false or misleading information has been circulated in an attempt to manipulate market prices.

Announcing its move today, the SEC said it is sending the corporations a special questionnaire "in order to ascertain the nature and extent of their financial public relations activities during the past few years."

Replies will be analyzed as part of the commission's broad study of the securities industry, ordered by Congress last year.

Corporations were told that their inclusion in the study "should not be regarded as any reflection upon your company or anyone connected with it, or upon any public relations firm or consultant which may have been retained by your company."

Officials said the corporations represent a broad cross-section. They range from very small to very large firms and the markets for their securities vary from the New York Stock Exchange to local over-the-counter markets. The SEC declined to identify the companies questioned.

Thinks Attack on Cuba Would Work

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A counter-revolutionary leader has called for funds and recruits for a quick attack through what he called Fidel Castro's one very weak point in his defense of Cuba.

Rafael Serrallja, speaking at a Bayfront Park rally, did not elaborate on the alleged weak spot. But the leader of the Nacionalismo Realista said the attack could be successful, "given three months and 1,000 men."

Serrallja said 200 young anti-Castro guerrillas were training in a secret location in the Everglades with weapons furnished by Miami's Cuban colony.

Balloon Project Average Drops

CHICO, Calif. (AP)—The Star-gazer balloon project halting average has dropped to .333 because of a faulty castiron ring.

The ring around the neck of balloon No. 3 snapped Sunday as the 400-foot, helium-inflated contraption rose 100 feet off the ground during an Air Force launch attempt. The balloon ripped open.

The balloon was supposed to carry an instrument package 80,000 feet high, photographing the heavens as it soared toward the Pacific.

Balloon No. 1 exploded prematurely over the High Sierra several weeks ago. No. 2, launched a week ago, worked successfully.

Guatemala Overcomes Red Move

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

GUATEMALA (AP)—A decisive turn appeared imminent today in the week-long revolt against Guatemala's government as opposition leaders sought army support for a non-Communist front to replace embattled President Miguel Ydigoras.

Fearful the student-led uprising might lead to a Red coup, leaders of three major opposition parties tried to line up backing also from business, agricultural, educational and professional groups.

The government continued to broadcast claims it had the crisis under control, but a leading opposition figure told a reporter, "The situation is worsening by the minute."

"We believe the only way it can be saved is for Ydigoras to resign and be replaced by a civilian-military directorate which will hold free elections," he said. The three parties which have formed an anti-Communist, anti-Ydigoras bloc are the National Liberation Movement, the Christian Democracy party, and the Revolutionary party.

The attitude of the army is the key to the outcome of the crisis brought on when the students revolted last Tuesday.

Official radio broadcasts said the army is solidly behind the government and is ready to take strong steps to smash any further demonstrations.

At least 20 persons have been killed and more than 500 wounded since the revolt erupted in protest against alleged frauds in last December's elections which returned Ydigoras' Conservative party to power.

McRae Dyer, 69, Dies Friday At Little Rock

McRae Dyer, aged 69, a resident of Hope, died Friday in a Veterans Hospital at Little Rock.

He is survived by a son, John Ray Dyer of Hope; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Ermach of Shreveport; three sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Cobb and Mrs. Bettie Hunter, both of Hope; Mrs. Bertha Bearden of Hot Springs; a brother, Frank Cogbill of Hope.

Services were held at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Herndon-Cornelius Chapel by Rev. Arlis Downs. Burial was in Westmoreland Cemetery.

County Voters to Decide Bond Issue Tuesday

Tuesday, March 20, voters of Hope and Hempstead County go to the polls to decide on a bond issue with which to finance an expansion by Delight Egg Farms Inc.

There will be only one issue on the ballot, for the bond issue and against the bond issue. Previously it was reported there would be two issues, the bonds and a two mill proposed tax to underwrite the bonds in the event Delight Egg Farms defaults on paying them off. The vote for the bond will automatically be a vote for the tax. If the issue passes $225,000 in bonds will be issued to construct a new egg plant near Hope capable of eventually processing 250,000 dozen eggs per week. In connection with the processing plant will be laying houses of approximately 15 per cent capacity of the plant. $20,000 will be held in reserve to service the bonds for a year in event of a temporary default.

The issue has been debated at length during the past few weeks, through speakings at clubs and through advertisements. Its now up to the people.

Rural areas will vote at their regular polling precincts. Six boxes will be set up in Hope. There will be only single boxes in Wards 1 and 2 where usually there are two precincts. Here's where the city votes:

Ward 1 — Fire Station

Ward 2 — Hempstead Court-house

Wards 3 and 4 — Hope City Hall

Box 5 — Walnut Street, Old Pontiac place now known as Harry Phillips' place.

Box 6 — Meyers Warehouse on South Walnut Street.

Coffelt Will Seek Office of Governor

By JOHN R. JUTTON

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas' infant gubernatorial race showed signs of coming more to life Saturday with the announced candidacy of Little Rock attorney Kenneth Coffelt.

Coffelt, no neophyte in the political arena, pledged to cite names and facts in wading out alleged corruption in the administration of Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

He became the second announced candidate, along with several "lifty" runners headed by the usually late-announcing governor.

Wallace Hurley, a Camden printing executive, has indicated a strong yearning to run. Others mentioned are Marvin Melton of Jonesboro and former Gov. Sid McMath.

Previously Rep. Dale Alford of Little Rock tossed his hat into the ring.

Coffelt told newsmen Saturday that if he wins the race utility rates will be sharply reduced, up to 15 per cent, with the state saving $5 million annually through wiser spending.

Other promises included wiping out alleged gambling dens in Little Rock and Hot Springs and seeing that all children receive an equal per capita dollar education.

Coffelt, who raises horses and cattle on a farm near Jacksonville, served two terms in the state legislature during the 1930s.

In 1939 he unsuccessfully opposed the late W. F. Norrell's initial bid for Congress.

His last try at politics was also a losing one. Coffelt was defeated in the race for 6th District prosecuting attorney by the incumbent Tom Downie.

With regard to alleged corruption under Faubus, Coffelt refused to go into details, saying merely "wait for the campaign to start."

Faubus says he may make an announcement concerning his political future as early as April 1.

He has several opportunities left in politics — seeking an unprecedented fifth term, running for a U.S. House seat or opposing J. William Fulbright for the Senate.

Or, as some persons have speculated, Faubus could retire, having never been defeated.

Russia Ready to Negotiate, Allies Told

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP) — The Soviet Union announced readiness today to join in negotiations with the United States and Britain on a nuclear weapon test ban treaty.

The Russians proposed that the three nuclear powers form a subcommittee of the 17-nation disarmament conference.

The Soviet declaration seemed certain to revive active work on the test ban, which has been locked in a stalemate for the past week.

Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, making the announcement at a news conference, made clear the Soviet Union would like to have France join in. The Paris government is boycotting the disarmament conference however.

The United States was reported to have told neutralist nations at the conference it is determined to resume testing in the atmosphere next month unless the Soviet Union changes its policy toward a test ban quickly.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and his aides, working behind the scenes over the weekend, urged diplomats of the middle group of nations to persuade the Soviets to accept a test ban treaty providing for international controls against cheating.

The Russians showed no sign of relaxing their opposition to foreign inspectors on their soil. Zorin reiterated the main Soviet condition for a test ban treaty—that any ban be policed only by each nation's scientific equipment for detecting explosions from afar.

However, Zorin implied a willingness to talk out problems with the West.

India and the other neutralists were themselves pressuring the United States, trying to get President Kennedy to modify his decision to start atmospheric blasts in April if the Soviet Union does not meanwhile agree to a treaty ban acceptable to the west.

The three-way struggle, over testing continued to overshadow the general disarmament negotiations as they went into the second week. Canadian Foreign Minister Howard Green was scheduled to give the main Western speech on disarmament at today's formal session of the 17-nation conference.

were to meet in the first of a series of informal negotiating sessions.

Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon was expected to carry on there his campaign for a compromise to break the U.S.-Soviet deadlock over testing. He is understood to be seeking new concessions from the United States, including suspension of the planned new test series even without a West-Soviet treaty.

British and American scientists started a review in the last day or so of the ability of their de-tection stations to discover atomic explosions which might be set off secretly in the Soviet Union.

The United States contends that no prohibition on testing will be reliable unless international in-spection with their own scientific stations and some rights of travel are stationed on territory of the nuclear powers.

Rusk has indicated some con-cessions to the Russians. But the Soviets, through Foreign Min-ister Andrei Gromyko and other spokesmen here, have flatly re-jected the U.S. treaty bid for in-ternational inspection.

Krishna Menon is reported to have talked about an international inspection authority which would operate outside the Soviet Union and the other nuclear powers in conjunction with national in-spection systems.

U.S. officials said they were not interested in such a deal—though they were closely watching Men-on's efforts to get negotiations go-ing.

Boys Didn't Know It Was Glenn

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Teen-age boys who scuffled with astro-naut John H. Glenn Jr. at his church have told police they did not realize who he was.

One boy was quoted as saying if he realized it was Glenn he would have tried to shake the Marine lieutenant colonel's hand.

This boy, referring to Glenn's from recording the license num-ber of the youths' car at the Little Falls United Presbyterian church.

In an interview with the Wash-ington Star, juvenile officer W. K. Davis also reported that a sepa-rate group of youths whom the astronaut encountered earlier in the evening of March 10 did not recognize him and one delib-erately taunted him.

This boy, referring to Glen's space capsule which landed in the ocean after his triple circuit of the earth Feb. 20, sang: "Beer can in the ocean. Beer can in the ocean."

Police are continuing their in-vestigation.

Rozzell in Poke at the Governor

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Or-val E. Faubus accused the Ar-kansas Education Association to-day of playing for time to "manu-facture something" critical of him to present to teachers.

Faubus' office issued a lengthy statement in which the governor attacked remarks made Saturday by Forrest Rozzell, executive sec-etary of the Arkansas Education Association.

Rozzell accused the Faubus ad-ministration of breaking promises. Faubus today challenged Rozzell to name a governor "whose ad-ministration has done more than this one to improve the financial status of public schools."

Rozzell told the Classroom Teachers Association Saturday the allegedly list of broken Faubus promises would be made public soon.

"Why didn't he say, 'the gov-ernor's record of broken prom-ises is well known to all of you?'" Faubus asked in a statement.

"How come this record is such a secret to the best educated people in the state?"

The answer, Faubus said, is that "Mr. Rozzell and his cohorts must have time to manufacture something to present to the teach-ers."

Jury Picked in Harrison Slaying

HARRISON, Ark. (AP)— Sele-ction of a jury in the first degree murder trial of Mrs. Helen G. Hickenbottom, 39, was set today at Harrison.

Mrs. Hickenbottom is charged with the Christmas night slaying last year of her 44-year-old hus-band, Kenneth, at their farm home near Harrison.

Circuit Judge Woody Murray has disqualified himself from hearing the trial. He is a third cousin of Mrs. Hickenbottom. The trial will be heard by Chancery Judge Ernie Wright.

Mrs. Hickenbottom has been free on $10,000 bond since she was charged in the shooting.

purity of the ballot should be maintained.

The women are not advocating stuffed ballot boxes, nor are the political masters asking that the secret ballot be disallowed. It is a problem of voting machine con-struction and political and femi-nine design.

The co-sponsors now have the actual or voiced support of many civic organizations across the state.

The women provide the nucleus of the drive, but they are receiv-ing male assistance.

The campaign is being conduct-ed at the county level, the most desirable level for touching all points in Arkansas with limited woman-power.

Allen Gates of Little Rock di-rects a committee to finance the project, and Herbert L. Thomas Sr., builder of a multi-million dol-lar insurance enterprise, acts in an advisory capacity.

They hope the campaign will be completed before the June dead-line.

In any event, legislators can ex-pect to be cajoled, badgered and beguiled. The women appreciated the legislators' "gesture" last year but they were not fooled.

After 4 Years the Talk Is Just Same

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just about four years ago Russia switched its ambassadors to Washington. Mikhail A. Menshikov, attired in smiles, arrived to take over.

He smiled and was pleasant for four years. The day he arrived he promised to work to "establish and strengthen the atmosphere of understanding and trust between our countries."

It was just about the time the United States and Russia, as busy as could be polishing their missiles, were rejecting by long-distance, in letters and pronouncements, each other's ideas on disarmament.

After four years the Soviets decided to change ambassadors again and now Anatoly F. Dobrynin, an expert on American affairs, has arrived to replace Menshikov who has been reassigned to a minor Soviet post.

Dobrynin got off a train quoting Thomas Jefferson and saying:

U.S.-Soviet relations are "tremendously important" in whether the world has peace or war and therefore it is "highly important to make a joint effort to normalize our relations and to improve them."

That was Thursday, the same day the United States and Russia at Geneva revealed plans which make them look no closer on disarmament and nuclear test bans than they were when Menshikov first arrived.

In the four years between arrivals of the two ambassadors there was much that happened; and much that didn't, on disarmament. There was much talking. But what didn't happen was agreement on anything.

When Menshikov came here the United States and Russia were still firing off their nuclear tests in the atmosphere. Later that year, 1958, they voluntarily suspended them.

Then for three years of voluntary no-testing they talked about agreeing on a permanent ban on testing. Actually they had 333 sessions which broke up with no agreement last January.

In that three-year period the two sides conducted what the State Department likes to call a "series of probes" into each other's intentions.

Toward the end of that same three-year period Russia began testing again in the atmosphere. The United States plans to do likewise next month.

But this was not all that happened, or didn't happen, between Menshikov and Dobrynin because a ban on nuclear tests is not all there is to disarmament. There is the big, broad problem of general disarmament.

It is almost incredible to go Trimble, R. E. Cooper and Dorsey McRae Sr.

Mrs. James Morrow is doing nicely following surgery last week at Wadley hospital in Texarkana. Haskell Jones attended the Arkansas Broadcasters Assn. meeting in Little Rock on Saturday.

Miss Georgia Clark of Fayetteville was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Stewart Saturday.

Last Thursday, the following members of the local Presbyterian Church attended a Southwest District meeting at the Texarkana, Ark., Presbyterian Church: Mesdames Lynn Harris, James Branch, Jim McKenzie, L. T. Lawrence, W. Y. Foster, G. B. in L.R. Tuesday. He is reported Hughes, H. B. Barr, Leo Robins, Cilt Stuart, Sr., C. C. Lewis, W. E. Waller, Duffie Booth, Emory Thompson, J. C. Broyles, F. Y.

French Army, Rebels Sign Algeria Pact

By ANDREW BOROWICZ
ALGIERS (AP) — The cease-fire in the Algerian war went into effect at the stroke of noon today, ending 7½ years of savage warfare between France and the Nationalist rebels.

Even as the cease-fire became official, the French army and police forces remained on the alert to combat the Secret Army Organization pledged to keep Algeria French.

The Algerian rebel premier, arriving in Rome en route from Tunis to Morocco, said the "cease-fire has not brought peace to Algeria."

"There are still enemies of peace there," said Premier Ben Youssef ben Khedda. He cited "groups whose interest it is to sabotage the peace," obviously referring to the secret army.

More bloodshed threatened before Algeria gains independence as the underground army of European settlers defiantly proclaimed: "Now the real fighting has begun."

As the first show of strength, the secret army called a general strike in Algeria's major cities for 24 hours and urged Europeans to remain indoors.

The walkout that went into effect at midnight crippled the capital city of Algiers but the French army was in tight control.

Jean Morin, French delegate general, appealed to both Europeans and Moslems to remain calm. He told the Europeans, "I know the solution (the cease-fire) is not the one you wanted but it is a solution of reality."

He warned them against "a catastrophe of senseless resistance," and counseled the Moslem majority to show "patience and prudence in the weeks to come."

The strike call was to demonstrate that the million European settlers—only one-tenth of Algeria's population—control the country's economic life and can cripple it at will.

French President Charles de Gaulle, acknowledging there still were last obstacles to be cleared up, brushed off the terrorist threat. He appealed to the French people for support of the cease-fire even though it marks the end of the French empire.

The 71-year-old French leader, who returned to power four years ago with the backing of former French army officers now leading the fight against him in Algeria, declared in a nationwide broadcast Sunday night that he had achieved a "solution of good sense."

U.S. President Kennedy hailed the agreement as providing "a sound basis for a friendly and fruitful relationship between Algeria and France."

Other West European countries and neutralist nations showed a surge of relief after years of fear that the North African revolt would explode into an international conflict.

Premier Khrushchev announced the Soviet government had granted De Jure recognition—recognition in law—to the provisional Algerian government that negotiated the peace agreement with France and said Moscow was ready to establish diplomatic relations with it.

Fallout Selter

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Completion of the first of six contracts in the state's current fallout shelter program is expected within a week. The survey is being conducted under the U.S. Army District Engineer in Pulaski, Arkansas, Chicago, Desha, Lee, Lonoke, Monroe, Phillips, Prairie and St. Francis Counties.

back over the record and note all that was said on both sides — on tests and disarmament—in statements, letters, pronouncements, and negotiations of one kind or another by Premier Khrushchev, Presidents Eisenhower and Kennedy, secretaries of state and sundry representatives, statesmen and politicians.

A few examples of the conferences alone—and the conferences themselves were preceded by prodigious jockeying on both sides—make disarmament and modern man look as far off and windy as Mt. Everest.

In July 1958 East-West scientists met at Geneva to study the possibility of detecting violations of a possible agreement on suspension of nuclear tests.

On Nov. 1, 1958 there was a 10-nation conference on how to reduce the danger of surprise attack and this broke up in disagreement in six weeks.

Just two years ago this week —on March 15, 1960—and in the same place as now, general disarmament talks began. Both sides were miles apart, as they were this week. The talks collapsed after 48 meetings.

Then for three months, starting in June 1961, the two sides met again, not to discuss disarmament but simply to discuss the question of how to start discussing disarmament.

When they finished the two sides issued a statement full of noble intentions which said nothing. Here we go again.

DOROTHY DIX Good and Bad Apples In Every Barrel

By HELEN WOREN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Do you think psychologists make good husbands? My son-in-law is one. When he and my daughter married, I said, "Glory be praised, we'll have somebody handy to break up any family hassles." As of today —her recalcitrant husband goes, no six years later — that's for the birds.

My daughter earns more money than he but do you think she gets to spend any of it on herself? He hits the ceiling at having to turn over one penny of his salary toward maintenance of the home and keeps out $30 for his own selfish needs. He can eat enough for three men at one meal, is continually wanting new clothes when his wife still wears those I bought for her trousseau in 1956.

Every time he takes out the car —paid for with his wife's money —he returns it in bad shape but refuses to pay for repairs or new tires.

When she mentions visiting me or having me visit her, he bellows like a wounded bull yet sulks worse than a baby if she hasn't got time to drive him over to his mother's weekends. Yet it's a long trip and his mother won't let my daughter stay that night.

Last week he got into such a rage when she took him, at his own request to the city instead that he hollered all the three hours there and back about divorcing.

I told him he would never get a better wife. She keeps his house so clean. "Too clean," he shouted. He was married before. I say if a man can't live with one woman, he then can't with another. The fault is his. What can I do to help my poor daughter?

Troubled Mother: Dear Troubled Mother: There are good and bad apples in every barrel. Psychologists are no different from any other members to the human race. What your son-in-law evidently needs is psychiatric treatment. You could well say to him, "Physician heal thyself." As for your second question: You can best help your daughter by staying out of the picture.

Dear Helen: I am a boy of 13 with a brother 16. Our mother throws a fit every time anything goes wrong in our house, which is often. She shouts, swears and threatens suicide or divorce if I and my brother, or our father, don't do exactly what she wants when she wants it.

I admit the first problem is us. We've got so we just shrug off work. The reason is that she overworks and over-punishes us for minor incidents. Right now I'm not allowed to even shut my own bedroom door. Please give us the answer to both problems quickly.

S. B. Dear S. B. Sounds as if your mother was overworked and as a result had a bad case of nerves. If you three do your share of the

Violent Death Toll in State Reaches 10

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A southwest Arkansas man was fatally injured in a traffic accident in front of his house Sunday, bringing to 10 the number of persons dying violently in the state during the week ended last midnight.

State Police said J. S. Stafford, 55, of the West Otis community south of DeQueen was killed when his pickup truck collided with a car driven by George Brewer, 33, of Horatio, Ark.

Brewer was hospitalized at DeQueen. John Mealer, 30, of Hughes, died Sunday following a collision between the car in which he was riding and a station wagon on State Highway 79 about 11 miles southwest of Lehi.

Officers said Mealer was a passenger in a car driven by Edward Nelson, 60, of Hughes, which smashed head-on into the station wagon of Sidney Fair, 24, of Nesbitt, Miss.

During the week, five persons died on Arkansas highways, two were fatally shot, one was stabbed to death, one was killed by a falling tree and another by a log falling from a lumber truck.

Much of the wheat farm area of Minnesota, North Dakota and parts of Canada were once the bottom of the prehistoric Lake Agassiz.

household chores, maybe things will calm down. How about you and your brother earning some extra money to give your mother a rest away from home, even if it's only a weekend in the next town. Suggest this to your father. Enlist his help.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Guidance to Gracious Living."

Senate Hopes to Abolish the Poll Tax

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders hoped today for an early vote on an antipoll tax measure, while the House was getting set for showdowns on the B70 bomber program and tax reform.

The Senate picks up where it left off last week, with Southern foes battling against a proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the poll tax as a requirement for voting in federal elections.

The Senate probably will tackle next President Kennedy's request for authority to buy half a $200-million U.N. bond issue. Administration lieutenants reportedly are trying to nail down votes for the plan, even in the limited form recommended by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The scrap over the antipoll tax amendment is regarded as preliminary to a full-scale civil rights battle in the Senate next month sparked by a bill to ban any literacy test other than a sixth-grade education for voters in federal elections.

The Senate Constitutional Rights subcommittee, headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., is to start hearings on the measure Tuesday. Ervin has called the bill unconstitutional.

Another major set of hearings will get under way Wednesday when a Senate Armed Services subcommittee starts an inquiry into the nation's huge stockpile of strategic materials.

The House is slated to take up Tuesday a bill authorizing $13 billion for weapons construction, including $491 million for a stepped-up B70 bomber program.

Chairman Carl Vinson, D-Ga., of the House Armed Services Committee, is leading the fight for faster development of the 2,000-mile-an-hour bomber. The administration is opposing Vinson's move. By the time the plane could be combat ready, the administration contends it would have been made obsolete by the nation's growing armada of missiles.

Later in the week, the House plans to take up a major tax revision bill providing business tax concessions designed to spur plant modernization and tightening of loopholes.

In reports over the weekend, Republican and Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee, which drafted the bill for the House, disagreed over what effect it would have on next year's budget.

The Republicans contended the bill points straight to a $2.5 billion deficit next year.

Democrats conceded the bill involved a large net loss of revenue next year — estimates ranged upward from $600 million — but they said the Treasury believed the stimulation given the national economy by the tax changes would bring about a virtual balance in future years.

The worst avalanche disaster recorded was in 1916 in the Alps where a series of snowslides killed 10,000 people.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas managed one lone victory over strong Northeast Oklahoma State tennis teams that took four of five singles matches and both doubles here Saturday.

Jack Bailey of Arkansas defeated Bob Kiser 6-4, 6-2.

In the singles matches Ronnie Cox defeated Alan Beachamp 6-2, 7-5; Chad Storie downed Tom Stephens 6-4, 6-3; David Kisher beat Charles Long 6-2, 6-3 and Lou Berryhill took a 6-2, 3-6, 6-2 decision over Mike Meistrell.

In the doubles Cox and D. J. Kisher beat Bailey and Long 7-5, 6-7, 6-2 and Storie and B. Kisher downed Beachamp and Meistrell 6-1, 7-5.

Record Book Mistaken, Minnie Says

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Like Sugar Ray Robinson and Archie Moore, Minnie Mino claims the record books are mistaken about his correct age.

"I was born November, 1924 (not 1922)," said the newest St. Louis Cardinal today. "That make me 37. Everybody call me 40 or 42. They wrong. When I first came from Cuba to play ball, they say I have put down older date to get passport because of army. I say, 'Okay, put down what you want.'"

Whatever the book says, Mino claims he is younger than springtime.

"In my mind I feel I just started," he said. "Years make no difference. It is legs what count in baseball. My legs still good."

"This game I love each day more. This game give me lots of things I never expect to get. If they have to push me and say 'Minnie do this, Minnie do that' that different. But Minnie run all day. Nobody have tell him."

How much did Mino think he had slowed down?

"Maybe little bit. But when I no go third base from first, nobody else make it. When I no make it, (Luis) Aparicio no make it either. Nobody have make my plays in outfield yet."

"When I boy in Cuba I cut sugar cane and bring sugar to center. $2.50 all day from 3 o'clock in morning to 6 at night. Baseball like play after that."

Johnny Keene, Cardinal manager, expects Mino to be an every day player. He hopes Minnie will stir up the club to become more aggressive on the bases.

"When we made the trade I talked to Al Lopez and asked him about Minnie," he said. "Al told me that with Mino's all singles are doubles until you stop him."

Peronists Gain Ground in Argentina

By FRANK N. MANITZAS

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi today ordered federal control in all provinces where Peronists won in Sunday's nationwide congressional and provincial elections.

The move enables Frondizi to name governors for the provinces and in effect nullifies the effects of the balloting, which resulted in a Peronist landslide and a sharp setback to Frondizi's government.

Latest unofficial returns showed that followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron won more than 30 seats in the national Congress and 10 governors' posts including that of Buenos Aires Province, which is second to the presidency in political power and prestige.

Frondizi acted at about 5 a.m. after Argentina's armed forces chiefs met with Interior Minister Alfredo Vitolo to consider whether to form a military junta to deal with the crisis.

The military chiefs called on Frondizi to intervene and demanded the resignation of Vitolo, who had mapped the strategy of Sunday's election. Vitolo reportedly already had submitted his resignation, but government house sources said Frondizi had not decided whether to accept it.

Jubilant Peronists hailed the outcome as a recall for their exiled leader, but there was doubt the military, which threw Peron out in 1955, would permit his followers to regain control.

After the voting trend became clear, Frondizi's ruling Intransigent Radical party issued a warning that the Peronist victory could cause chaos in Argentina.

Peron was not present to taste the fruits of his victory. He was reported following the returns by telephone from exile in Madrid.

At midnight, the four-year-old state of siege, lifted for election day, went back into effect.

Almost three and a half million people live in the 338 square miles of Hong Kong. The population is predicted to increase by another million during the next 10 years.

Publicity Group Seeks Loud Frog

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Publicity and Parks Commission sounded a call Thursday for the "loudest croacking, highest jumping" frog in Arkansas to represent the state in a California contest.

Publicity Director Clovis Copeland faces a challenge from Val T. Monot, "mayor of Frogtown, Calif.," to enter a frog in the contest May 17-20 at Calaveras County Fair in Angels Camp, Calif.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus indirectly started the Arkansas frog hunt rolling by notifying Copeland he had received an invitation for a Arkansas frog to enter the contest.

Copeland's urgent appeal: Any one having a frog capable of a good jump notify his office at the state capitol.

Project 20 Covered Too Much

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—"Cops and Robbers," Sunday night's Project 20 documentary on 300 years of crime in America, gave us a fast rundown on the more prominent domestic wrongdoers.

The NBC show started with a multitudes passenger on the Mayflower and wound up with a Senate committee hearing—"I respectfully (sic) refuse to answer on the grounds that it may intend (sic) to incriminate me."

But the program was never very interesting, partly because it was trying to cover too much too fast. But mostly because we're pretty familiar with the activities of our most famous infamous.

The Project 20 technique, using old posters, pictures, newsreel clips and a narrator to fill in the chinks, is good for some subjects. But as far as crime is concerned, conventional movie or television treatment is infinitely more satisfying. In real life, the cameras get busy only after the action stops.

Still pictures of desperadoes—even of John Dillinger—don't suggest their heinous crimes. The prohibition bad men—Capone and Nitti—have been pretty well covered by the "Untouchables." The modern type of businessmen criminals are being explored systematically by such shows as "Target: The Corrupters." Most of us are familiar with the crimes, if not the criminals and know them as well as the author of the script.

The lineup of "interim hosts" who will keep NBC's "Tonight" show running after Jack Paar leaves March 29 now includes Pat Boone, Mort Sahl, Steve Lawrence—and there's a rumor Zsa Zsa Gabor will get a whack at the job. Meanwhile one sponsor has promised the show an enormous hunk of business when Johnny Carson takes over in October.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Athletic Association has expanded its 1961-62 Big Nine all-conference team to 13 members.

Normally 12 are chosen for the team, but a three-way tie resulted in the extra player being named. Co-champions North Little Rock and Little Rock Hall have two men each on the team, as does Blytheville and Pine Bluff. Placing one player each were El Dorado, Hot Springs, Fort Smith and Texarkana.

Jim Holstead and Basil Hicks made the dream team from North Little Rock; Phillip Young from Fort Smith; Wayne Newton and Tommy Rowland, Hall;

Gary Ellis, El Dorado; Johnny Green and Ronnie Reeves, Pine Bluff; Gary Barrow, Texarkana; Darrell Ward, Little Rock Central; Bob Herring, Hot Springs and Mickey Johnson and Cleo Massey, Blytheville.

The tie was between Reeves, Herring and Massey.

BANKING ON DEATH

BY EMMA LATHEN

Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn., © Emma Lathen, 1961

While he was unprepared to countenance brawls in his office, Thatcher was curious about anyone who could ruffle Miss Corsa.

Chapter 1

The Sloan Guaranty Trust, although occupying a substantial site on Exchange Place, is, in fact, in the heart of Wall Street. The third largest bank in the world, it is far too important to concern itself with, say, Christmas savings clubs; you go to an uptown branch for that. The Sloan invests, underwrites, finances.

The elevator eased itself to a cushioned halt at the sixth floor and John Putnam Thatcher, senior vice president and director of the trust department, waited for the doors to open.

It was standard operating procedure for the floor receptionist to buzz the entire department when the lower elevator arrived. Thatcher was grateful for a system which protected him from public knowledge of his juniors' lack of assiduity.

He savored the air of hectic activity which greeted him as he passed through the typists' pool with appreciation. The noise level dropped sharply on the other side of the double doors which separate the clerical force from the staff. Such division into haves and have-nots was the result of "functional creativity" practiced by the architect when the Sloan was last remodeled. This arrangement, explained the architect, would enable trust officers to work in noiseless serenity and maintain the calm control so desirable in bankers. To Thatcher, the sepulchral silence that now enveloped his division was a perpetual irritant, evoking visions of furtive movements and whispered conferences.

There was, however, nothing whispered about the angry voices which suddenly came to him as he turned to enter his own suite of offices.

"Young woman," growled a deep voice that was totally unfamiliar to him, "I have already explained to you that this is a matter of some importance."

"Please, Mr. Snyder," said Thatcher's secretary in tones of genteel anger, "unless you have an appointment, I am afraid."

"It's Schneider, S-C-H—" Thatcher advanced into the room and surveyed the disputants. Miss Corsa, usually lyphatically calm, stood defiantly behind her desk, prepared to defend it against assault. She was looking wildly at a heavy-set man in his middle fifties now brick-red with indignation. She greeted Thatcher with an exaggerated sigh of relief.

"Oh, Mr. Thatcher. I've been trying to explain to Mr. Snyder—"

"Yes, I heard you," said Thatcher, turning courteously to his uninvited visitor. "Mr. Schneider, is it?"

While he was unprepared on countenance brawls in his office, he was curious about anyone who could ruffle Miss Corsa.

"Yes, it's Arthur Schneider. I've been trying to explain to your secretary that I'm in New York for only a day or two before going on to Chicago. Now I realize that you have many demands on your time—don't we all?—but I'm inclined to agree with Grace that the simplest thing to do is for you and me to sit down together and thrash this thing out—I think it will save time for all of us in the end."

Thatcher bowed to the inevitable. Clearly it would be quicker to placate the man than to get rid of him, although who "Grace" was and what "this thing" was remained obscure. Accordingly he turned to Miss Corsa and in a brisk voice asked, "Am I free for the next half hour?"

Miss Corsa, who valued routine, was not pleased with his capitulation but the request—which was actually a code that Thatcher had taught her with some difficulty—soothed her. She sat down and consulted an appointment book.

"You have an appointment with Mr. Withers at three, Mr. Thatcher," she said without looking up. It was 2:35.

"Perhaps we can at least outline the situation in the little time we have," Thatcher said. "Won't you come in, Mr. Schneider?" Standing aside to let Schneider precede him into the office, he wondered if the name of the president of the Sloan Guaranty Trust would operate as powerfully on Arthur Schneider as it did on most of his visitors.

Schneider marched triumphantly into the office, dropped his overcoat in one of the shabby, comfortable armchairs which Thatcher had retained in the face of spirited resistance by the Sloan's interior decorators, settled in another.

"You'll have guessed that this is about the Schneider Trust," he said expansively. "Now that Hilda is dying, the matter of finding Robert has become critical. Quite apart from the annoyance, we have no assurance that he's alive at all or that we ever will hear from him. I'm sure that you appreciate our position."

"Certainly," lied Thatcher as he circled his desk. Sloan handled more than 20,000 trusts, a fact Arthur Schneider might be pardoned for not knowing. On the other hand, the Schneiders seemed to be a very disorderly tribe; they were either dying, missing entirely from the scene or raising Cain in bank offices. He wondered if Schneider would drop any clues as to the nature of his problem.

"Frankly, we are none too satisfied with the way that young man of yours is conducting the search. He seems to have no conception of the urgency of the situation or the amount of money involved. Now that Hilda is so close Martin and I—think that it near the end, Grace—and of would be ridiculous to allow further delays to confuse a confused enough situation."

"Exactly," murmured Thatcher absently. His attention had been riveted by the reference to a "young man" of his. Which of his underlings had been unfortunate enough to have to cope with Arthur and the somewhat sinister, if unknown, Grace? If it were really a young man, then this was one of the small trusts—the so-called nuisance accounts—on which beginners at the Sloan were allowed to cut their eye teeth. They were legacies of another age; today the Sloan accepted no trust under a million dollars.

"...and I have been trying to impress on Nicolls that unless he can get results in the very near future—that is to say, before Hilda dies—then it would be nonsense to hold up distribution of the estate until we can determine Robert Schneider's whereabouts. The whole thing has been muddled enough already!" Schneider paused, apparently for breath, while Thatcher concentrated on the one familiar name that had come his way. Kenneth Nicolls was the trust officer. A small estate then, but giving plenty of trouble.

"Of course," the Sloan doesn't handle many missing heir problems these days. Life has become too much a matter of files and records for that," he essayed tentatively.

"It's typical of Robert," retorted Arthur bitterly. "I wouldn't put it past him to do this deliberately. After all, he's still a young man and we know that he came out of the Second World War all right. I ask you, is it reasonable that a man should drop out of sight completely when he knows he's coming into $100,000?"

"Certainly not," said Thatcher, his banker's instincts revolted at the suggestion. "What did you have in mind?"

Schneider lowered his voice impressively. "A partial distribution—yes, a partial distribution. It may take years to locate Robert. After all, when Hilda dies, the money legally belongs to us. All we want is to have what is ours. It's outrageous that we should be kept kicking our heels until Robert shows up. Which he will," he concluded sourly.

Thatcher discovered that he had been laboring under a misconception which was scarcely surprising under the circumstances. Apparently all the Schneiders were joint heirs to one trust fund, and Robert's absence was raising the devil with the administration and disposition of the trust. This kind of mess should never have been left to young Nicolls, who was probably sweating blood.

"You understand, Mr. Schneider, that we are generally very reluctant to..."

"Certainly certainly," Schneider interrupted, "we realize that this presents a great many problems for the bank, and we are prepared to assist in every way. His grievances again threatened to deflect him. He tapped his foot impatiently. "This is a sort of penalty for those of us who have stayed at home and taken care of the family business while Robert wanders to God knows where without giving any sign of life. Nor is there any reason for the kind of behavior."

He warned to his subject: "Completely unsympathetic to some of his more outrageous activities. However, that's neither here nor there: I have already pointed out to Grace that we must co-operate to the hilt. We're ready to do everything we can to help you find him. Not that that's much, I'm afraid. He's been gone over 15 years, you know."

"Indeed, I didn't realize that it was so long," said Thatcher with perfect truth.

Ohio State Is Taking Aim at Cincinnati

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State, just itching to get another crack at Cincinnati's basketball Bearcats for the national collegiate title, began taking aim on the rematch today by first zeroing in on Wake Forest.

The Buckeyes, who lost a 70-65 overtime thriller to Cincy a year ago for the title, meet with the horrid Deacons in the first game of the semifinal match this Friday night in Louisville's Freedom Hall.

Cincinnati, just as eager to make it two in a row over its mistrust rival, meets surprising UCLA in the nightcap. The winners play Saturday night for the title and it will be surprising if the Bucks and Bears are out.

While the week of waiting and wondering is going on, the far will fly in New York National Invitation Tournament, picking up again Tuesday night with the last quarter-final pairing, Bradley, which came to the NIT after losing a playoff battle with Cincinnati for the Missouri Valley Conference's NCAA berth, takes on Duquesne and St. John's plays Holy Cross.

The winners will play each other in one semifinal game on Thursday night, while Loyola of Chicago and Dayton meet in the other game. Loyola smothered Temple 75-64 and Dayton's on-rushing Flyers easily defeated Houston 94-77 in quarter-final games last Saturday night.

Both Bradley and St. John's drew byes. Duquesne, which beat the Braves only two weeks ago in a regular season game, defeated Navy 70-58 and Holy Cross edged Colorado State University 72-71 in first-round games.

The semifinal winners meet for the title on Saturday afternoon, in a game that will be televised nationally—NBC.

No sooner had Ohio State and Cincinnati roached their respective dressing rooms after the 1961 title game, than talk of a rematch began, and it has persisted all year. Now comes the weekend of decision.

The Buckeyes, with a 21-1 season record, took the NCAA Mid-

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Little Rock golfers Sonny Methvin and Richard Crawford faltered on the 18th hole and lost in the final round of the Champions Cup Amateur Golf Matches here Sunday.

Singer Don Cherry and his partner, Gene McBride of Wichita Falls, Tex., carded a final round 69 to take the best-ball 72-hole

East regional title at Iowa City on Saturday night with a 74-64 victory over Kentucky's young Wildcats as All-America Jerry Lucas collected 33 points and played his usual flawless floor game.

Cincinnati easily disposed of Colorado for the Midwest title, winning 73-46 at Manhattan, Kan. Paul Hogue, the giant center, scored 22 points as the Bearcats won their 16th in a row.

The two supposed sacrificial lambs—Wake Forest and UCLA—were far from unimpressive. The Deacons, behind All-America Len Chappell, whipped Villanova 79-69 for the Eastern regional title, and UCLA's Bruins put the clamps on 7-foot Mel Counts and rolled over Oregon State 88-69 for the Far West title.

The smaller colleges' two main titles were wrapped up over the weekend, with Mount St. Mary's getting the NCAA college division crown by beating Sacramento State 58-57 in overtime and Prairie View knocking off favored Westminster (Pa.) 62-53 for NAIA honors.

Aqueduct Race Track Has Opened

By ORO ROBERTSON

The big news on the horse racing circuit this week is the opening of New York's Aqueduct Tuesday with the $25,000 Swift for a 3-year-olds the chief attraction and the renewal of the $100,000-added John B. Campbell Handicap at Bowie Saturday.

The 6-furlong Swift figures to give the first line of the year on Verne H. Winchell's Donut King. The 1961 Champagne winner spent a quiet winter at Santa Anita since finishing second to Crimson Satan in last fall's Garden State Stakes.

The son of Determine has looked impressive in workouts at Aqueduct. But in the Swift he'll face such race-conditioned runners as Sunrise County, first finisher but disqualified in the Flamingo at Hialeah Park; Green Tickle, who looks exceptionally well again, and Sidluck, winner of two Hialeah starts at 1 1/4 miles and well up in two earlier sprints.

Calumet Farm's Yorky, winner of the Widener Handicap was disqualified out of the Gulfstream Cup after edging Jay Fox by a neck.

The disqualification of Yorky in the Gulfstream Handicap marked the second major Florida race marred by a foul this year. In the Flamingo, Sunrise County finished first but was set back to third for bearing out in the stretch, moving Prego into first place and Ridden into the runnerup spot.

Carry Back, with Manuel Yencza replacing Johnny Sellers in the saddle, staged his usual stretch drive but was beaten 1 1/4 lengths for all the money. The $10,000 he picked up, however, ran his total bankroll to $312,758.

The $34,800 Governors Handicap at Bowie turned up a probable Kentucky Derby starter in Ad L. Rice's Daddy R. He won the 7-furlong event by 3 1/2 lengths and turned in the fast time of 1:23.

Bologna, Italy—Bert Whitehurst, 198 1/2, Baltimore, Md., outpointed Federico Friso, 215 1/2, Italy, 8.

Buenos Aires—Danny Kid, The Philippines, and Ricardo Gozalez, Argentina, featherweights, drew, 10, (weights unavailable). Milan, Italy—Omar Oliva, Argentina, stopped Danilo Guisti, Italy, featherweights, 4 (weights unavailable).

The Campbell, at 11-16 miles, will lack stars of Florida's handicapping division. L. P. Sasso's Globe, a galloping winner of a 6-furlong race at Bowie last Thursday, probably will be the leading contender.

Carry Back, the 1961 3-year-old champ, again failed to break into the winner's circle when he finished third back of Jay Fox and Yorky in last Saturday's $112,000 Gulfstream Handicap.

Calumet Farm's Yorky, winner of the Widener Handicap was disqualified out of the Gulfstream Cup after edging Jay Fox by a neck.

The disqualification of Yorky in the Gulfstream Handicap marked the second major Florida race marred by a foul this year. In the Flamingo, Sunrise County finished first but was set back to third for bearing out in the stretch, moving Prego into first place and Ridden into the runnerup spot.

Carry Back, with Manuel Yencza replacing Johnny Sellers in the saddle, staged his usual stretch drive but was beaten 1 1/4 lengths for all the money. The $10,000 he picked up, however, ran his total bankroll to $312,758.

The $34,800 Governors Handicap at Bowie turned up a probable Kentucky Derby starter in Ad L. Rice's Daddy R. He won the 7-furlong event by 3 1/2 lengths and turned in the fast time of 1:23.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H.

Great Decisions:

are made by people who

Think Flameless

They have taken just a little extra time to think it through, so naturally they decide on the Flameless way. Take this example; they want the safest, most convenient method of drying clothes, so they decide on a Flameless Electric Dryer. It just makes sense.

Flameless means gentle, clean heat... fresher-looking, whiter clothes... a simple, worry-free mechanism. When you think Flameless you live the Electric way... a great decision you can make today.
